

WASHINGTON, DC—Coinciding with the annual March for Life in the nation's capital, Representative Steve Driehaus today officially became a member of the Bipartisan Congressional Pro-Life Caucus in the House of Representatives. This group of legislators is committed to promoting a pro-life agenda in Congress.

"I am proud to join this group of lawmakers united in this critical common purpose. As part of the Pro-Life Caucus, I pledge to continue working with my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to work toward a nation committed to protecting human life," said Rep. Driehaus.

"I am pleased to welcome Steve Driehaus to the Congressional Pro-Life Caucus," said Representative Bart Stupak (D-MI), co-chairman of the caucus. "Congressman Driehaus has strong credentials on life issues from his days in the Ohio legislature. This experience will service him well in Congress and in the Pro-Life Caucus. I look forward to his valuable input as we work together to protect human life."

Representative Driehaus continues to work as a pro-life legislator. During his eight years in the Ohio House of Representatives, Rep. Driehaus established a strong pro-life voting record. He now joins with Democratic and Republican lawmakers to support a pro-life agenda on the federal level.
